Though it does not cancel the possibility of participation of a shareholder (or authorized representative) by attending the Meeting. This method is already implemented in the Russian market, and shareholders have a possibility to use it.

Thus, it is now possible for the Shareholders, if their securities are accounted for in the depositories, to remotely obtain information about meetings, materials about them, as well as to vote on the agenda and learn about the results of the Meeting. It is necessary though to specify whether your depository supports the e-voting service.

* E-proxy voting is a way to participate in the Shareholders Meeting which provides for sending voting instructions by the investor via his depository. E-proxy voting is available for the Russian Shareholders in international format ISO 20022 which contains standard requirements to the documents provided as a part of corporate actions, that simplifies participation in the Shareholders meeting.
