Thus, Shareholders, whose securities are registered in depositories, have an opportunity to remotely receive information about meetings, materials on them, as well as vote on the agenda and obtain information with the meeting results. It is necessary to confirm whether your depository supports an electronic voting service.

^{*} E-proxy voting is a method of participating in a Meeting of Securities Owners, which provides for the Investor to send instructions for voting through their depository. Electronic voting "e-proxy voting" is available to Russian Shareholders in the international ISO 20022 format, which contains standard requirements for documents provided as part of corporate actions, which makes it easier for a Shareholder to participate in the Meeting.
